

Fake news

Bisera Kostadinovska-Stojchevska, PhD

The first image that “pops” into one’s mind when mentioning the term
fake news

What is “fake news”?

- Before PE 2016: The word "fake" originates in the early 19th century. "'Fake,' in the sense of something being bogus or counterfeit, apparently began life a little over 200 years ago among the 'flash' language used by criminals in 18th- and 19th-century England
- After PE 2016: "False news stories, often of a sensational nature, created to be widely shared online for the purpose of generating ad revenue via web traffic or discrediting a public figure, political movement, company, etc."

Linguistically speaking...

- Fake news- self-explanatory compound noun — a combination of two distinct words, both well known, which when used in combination yield an easily understood meaning. Fake news is, quite simply, news (“material reported in a newspaper or news periodical or on a newscast”) that is fake (“false, counterfeit”). (<https://www.merriam-webster.com/words-at-play/the-real-story-of-fake-news>)

Is it dictionary-worthy?

- *Not blunt enough? In mid-February, following Trump's freewheeling news conference, Smith labeled Trump's responses "absolutely crazy." He even - horror of horrors! - defended CNN, Fox's mortal enemy, when Trump blasted it as "fake news" during another news conference.
—Paul Farhi, The Washington Post, 23 Mar. 2017*

What is it?

- “Trump blasted it as “fake news””

Does this mean that this kinds of news are fake (how can we prove that) or is it something that is tied to a specific person (President Trump, in this case)?

- <http://mentalfloss.com/article/92556/fake-etymology-story-behind-one-dictionary-s-most-intriguing-words>

A theory claiming that fake could be related to the German fegen or Dutch vegen, both meaning “to polish,” or “to wipe clean”—the implication being that something might once have been said to have been “faked” when it had been cleaned up to appear more valuable than it actually was.

In contrast to Trump's understanding and use of fake news, Wikipedia tells us something else:

False statements

As president, Trump has frequently made false statements in public speeches and remarks. [\[262\]](#)[\[263\]](#)[\[264\]](#)[\[265\]](#)

Trump uttered "at least one false or misleading claim per day on 91 of his first 99 days" in office according to The New York Times, [\[262\]](#) and 1,318 total in his first 263 days in office according to the "Fact Checker" political analysis column of The Washington Post, [\[266\]](#) which also wrote, "President Trump is the most fact-challenged politician that The Fact Checker has ever encountered ... the pace and volume of the president's misstatements means that we cannot possibly keep up." [\[263\]](#) After 466 days in office, the tally was at 3,001 false or misleading claims, and it had risen to an average of 6.5 per day from 4.9 during Trump's first 100 days in office. [\[267\]](#) According to one study, the rate of false statements has increased, with the percentage of his words that are part of a false claim rising over the course of his presidency. [\[268\]](#) In general, news organizations have been hesitant to label these statements as "lies". [\[269\]](#)[\[270\]](#)[\[268\]](#)

Just an (innocent) example (from the post)

“I made a speech. I looked out, the field was — it looked like a million, million and a half people.”

Usually, it's a general complaint about news coverage — such as his Christmas Eve tweet: “The Fake News refuses to talk about how Big and how Strong our BASE is.”
(<https://www.factcheck.org/2018/01/trumps-phony-fake-news-claims/>)

A mention..

NWO agents and Satan worshipers have good reasons to be frightened by Putin's moves.

No kidding. Putin continues to send NWO agents and Satan worshipers in Russia and abroad a dire message, and they continue to panic. Pay close attention and see how he confronted factory owners in Russia—people who are playing dice with people's lives. He told them point-blankly that they “have taken” people

- Reporters found that the residents of Veles, a town in Macedonia with a population of 45,000, had registered at least 140 websites with names like USConservativeToday.com and TrumpVision365.com that published sensationalist, false, and often plagiarized content catering to the American right. Some articles incorrectly claimed that the pope had endorsed Trump for president, while others propelled the conspiracy theory that Chelsea Clinton is not actually Bill Clinton's daughter.

List

Name	Notes
70 News	A WordPress -hosted site that published a false news story, stating that Donald Trump had won the popular vote in the 2016 United States presidential election; the fake story rose to the top in searches for "final election results" on Google News .
ABCnews.com.co	Owned by Paul Horner . Mimics the URL, design and logo of ABC News (owned by Disney–ABC Television Group).
American News	Published a false story claiming actor Denzel Washington endorsed Donald Trump for president. The fictional headline led to thousands of people sharing it on Facebook, a prominent example of fake news spreading on the social network prior to the 2016 presidential election.
Before It's News	Cited by US President Donald Trump at his 2016 campaign rallies. Before It's News and Infowars were described as "unabashedly unhinged 'news' sites" in 2014 by The Washington Post following its promotion of conspiracy theories relating to Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 .
bizstandardnews.com	Its stories have been mistaken as real-news then shared and cited as real-news. Its disclaimer says the stories "could be true" because "reality is so strange nowadays". But the disclaimer also says it is "a satirical site designed to parody the 24-hour news cycle." ^[19] Its name is similar to the unrelated Indian English-language daily newspaper called Business Standard .
Bloomberg.ma	Designed to imitate Bloomberg.com . Was used to issue a false report announcing that Twitter had received a USD $31 billion takeover offer, resulting in a brief 8% stock price spike of Twitter. The site is now defunct.
The Boston Tribune	Starting in February 2016, this website's outright hoaxes quickly became popular with its readers.
Breaking-CNN.com	Responsible for publishing numerous death hoaxes , including one for former First Lady Barbara Bush one day after her announcement that she would halt all further medical treatment in 2018. Designed to emulate CNN .
BVA News
Celebtricity	Has falsely claimed that Barack Obama declared a state of emergency in Chicago, Illinois after more than 300 people were shot in one night; that a Wendy's employee put vaginal discharge on a burger as revenge against a partner; and that Bryshere Y. Gray was Jay-Z 's son. Contains a "notorious fauxtire and satire entertainment" disclaimer which used to read "the most notorious urban satirical entertainment website in the world". ^[32]
cnn-trending.com	Imitated CNN.com, complete with the CNN logo. Pushed the Hawking Code scam

COMBATING FAKE NEWS PANEL: GOVERNMENTS, ALONG WITH JOURNALISTS, MEDIA AND THE CITIZENS, SHOULD BE AT THE FOREFRONT OF COMBATING FAKE NEWS

WESTERN BALKAN DIGITAL SUMMIT 2018 Skopje

- Matthew Jacobs, Digital Coordinator for the Bureau of European and Eurasian Affairs at the U.S. Department of State, responsible for combating fake news in this institution, defined the phenomenon of “fake news” as a deliberate undermining of democratic processes. According to his analysis, it is the users who are actually the ones actualizing the fake news, not the bots and other automated digital processes.

A Taxonomy of TRUMP TWEETS

PREEMPTIVE FRAMING

Be the first to frame an idea

EXAMPLE: The hacking of the DNC was the DNC's fault and Democrats lost by a wide margin. (when in fact it was one of the narrowest margins in US history).

 JAN 7

@realDonaldTrump
Only reason the hacking of the poorly defended DNC is discussed is that the loss by the Dems was so big that they are totally embarrassed!

DIVERSION

Divert attention from real issues

EXAMPLE: Divert attention away from real issues around conflicts of interest and Russian hacking and toward Meryl Streep's speech at Golden Globe Awards.

 JAN 9

@realDonaldTrump
Meryl Streep, one of the most over-rated actresses in Hollywood, doesn't know me but attacked last night at the Golden Globes. She is a.....

Attack messenger, change direction

EXAMPLE: Attack media in an attempt to erode public trust. Reframe story as "fake news" and establish Trump administration as source of truth.

 JAN 11

@realDonaldTrump
Intelligence agencies should never have allowed this fake news to "leak" into the public. One last shot at me. Are we living in Nazi Germany?

TRIAL BALLOON

Test public reaction

EXAMPLE: Test public reaction to nuclear arms escalation.

@realDonaldTrump
The United States must greatly strengthen and expand its nuclear capability until such time as the world comes to its senses regarding nukes

Satire

Every good fake news article achieves two things: it entertains the reader but it also provides a social commentary. That's what makes Fake News such a good example of satire: an exaggeration of the truth to make a point.

North Korea's top leader named The Onion's Sexiest Man Alive for 2012

(People's Daily Online) 09:25, November 27, 2012

Edited and translated by Zhang Qian, People's Daily Online

U.S. website The Onion has named North Korean supreme leader Kim Jong Un as the "Sexiest Man Alive for the year 2012".

"With his deviously handsome, round face, his boyish charm, and his strong, sturdy frame, his Pyongyang-bred heartthrob is every woman's dream come true. Blessed with an air of power that masks an unmistakable cutie, cutely side, Kim made this newspaper's editorial board swoon with his impeccable fashion sense, chic short hair style, and, of course, that famous smile," I said.

"He has that rare ability to somehow be completely adorable and completely macho at the same time," said Melissa Blake-Zweibel, editor of The Onion Style and Entertainment.
